Spheres in Motion

EVOLVING A BEAUTIFUL BIOPHILIC BLUEPRINT At the heart of Seattle's bustling urban landscape, the Amazon Spheres, brilliantly designed by NBBJ, embody the essence of biophilic design, demonstrating how the integration of natural elements into commercial spaces can transform the modern workplace. Since their inception just a few years ago, the verdant domes have not only provided a lush retreat for Amazon employees but have also seen ongoing enhancements aimed at strengthening their connection to nature. Strategic updates include the relocation of plant species to optimize light exposure and the use of non-chemical pest control methods underscore a commitment to maintaining an authentic ecological balance. The implementation of advanced glazing techniques on the Spheres' glass panes maximizes sunlight penetration for photosynthesis without overheating, ensuring that both plant life and humans can thrive. The Spheres also serve as a dynamic educational tool, with spaces like 'The Understory' designed to engage the public and foster a deeper appreciation for biodiversity and sustainable architectural practices.

Through continuous refinements, the Amazon Spheres not only support the well-being of their occupants but also stand as a testament to the enduring influence of biophilia in urban design.

Friendly Competition

THE JANUS ET CIE STUDENT DESIGN COMPETITION, launched in 2021, invites young designers to innovate and redefine the impact of design on community spaces. With a first focus on inclusive playgrounds with champion Olivia Bloomfield, the competition has evolved, guided this year by Aristotle's concept that "the whole is greater than the sum of its parts." In collaboration with RIOS, students create interconnected elements like seating and planters to foster communal interaction. Esteemed judges from around the world including Giulio Cappellini, Cheryl Durst and Sebastian Herkner lead workshops, equipping participants with skills essential for careers in design and beyond. Open invitation welcomed registrants from 45 universities across 11 countries. The competition not only showcases global design perspectives but also ensures every student gains valuable, career-ready skills through direct engagement with design visionaries.

All Together, Now

IN TODAY'S EVOLVING OFFICE LANDSCAPE, where remote and hybrid positions, full-time and flex schedules, co-working spaces, and outdoor 'offices' are becoming the norm, the need for versatile, adaptable furniture is essential. Gone are the days of rigid desks and chairs; now, cafe tables and seating, communal, extendable, and occasional tables are essential for their multifunctionality, serving as spaces for meetings, presentations, dining, and coming together. Lounge areas double as meeting spots, emphasizing the need for beautifully designed, welcoming spaces that offer versatility. This new dynamic demands furniture that is not only durable and adaptable to various applications but also creates engaging environments. JANUS et Cie collections hit this sweet spot perfectly, with ancillary products that are elegantly designed to coordinate and complement any setting while being exceptionally engineered to withstand high-use areas and stand the test for today's time.
